About the Conference

The BC Next Gen Forestry Conference is an investment in the future of British Columbia's forests—and the people who will shape them. Bringing together 90 forestry and forestry-related students, and early-career professionals from across the province, this event creates a much-needed space to connect across disciplines, share diverse perspectives, and challenge conventional thinking. Through professional-led panels, workshops, and open discussions on topics like wildfire, diverse forestry careers, and complex sector issues, participants will build the skills, relationships, and critical insight needed to drive innovation and strengthen BC's forestry sector.

About the Conference, continued

To make this conference accessible and impactful, we are seeking to raise $30,000, which will directly support accommodations, meals, transportation, and program delivery. Your support helps empower the next generation of forestry leaders while fostering a more collaborative, informed, and forward-thinking community. By investing in this conference, you are investing in the long-term sustainability and resilience of BC's forests and the people who depend on them.
